

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

5.1 Conclusion

Based on the data analysis and discussion above, the writer may conclude that the feedbacks given by the teacher is not done properly, because the teacher just gave a general and same feedback to the students writing although the students' produced different piece of writing. The English teacher at SMA Negeri 1 Adonara Timur used teacher feedback in a special way, specifically Indirect Feedback, which means the teacher gives general feedback without giving an answer.

5.2 Suggestion

Based on the results of research that has been done, suggestions from the authors include:

1. For English teachers. They must continue to apply indirect or direct feedback to each student's writing so that the teacher can find out the improvement of each student's own knowledge in every material that has been taught by the teacher.

2. For students. Feedback from the English teacher can help students in developing their abilities and correcting mistakes made in each material provided by the teacher so that feedback from the teacher is very important in learning for a teacher and students.

3. This research will be a contribution to other research related to teacher feedback of students' writing in every lesson.
